BACKGROUND AND INFORMATION

Santander Universities

Santander Universities was first created in Spain in 1996 by Emilio Botín, who recognised that universities play an important role in society. He believed that Santander should support these institutions through the provision of scholarships, mobility awards, entrepreneurship funding and much more. In 2007 the scheme was launched in the UK and now has partnerships with over 80 universities, providing over £10m of funding in 2017 to support university staff and students. Abertay University is the latest institution to join the prestigious Santander Universities network.

Santander Universities supports the following activities and opportunities at Abertay:

The Santander Opportunities Fund – Funding has been allocated for work placements (as part of course), internships, conference travel and visits to partner universities for students who have financially challenging circumstances.

The Santander Internship Programme – A number of companies have offered internships for Abertay students over the summer of 2019 with Santander match-funding the salary for these internships. For more information on the opportunities available and how to apply, please contact careers@abertay.ac.uk

Support of Entrepreneurial Activities – Funding has been allocated for entrepreneurial activities such as a professional speakers programme, assistance with the incubation of early stage businesses and enterprise events within the University. For more information about enterprise at Abertay please contact Simon Fraser, Enterprise Officer on simon.fraser@abertay.ac.uk.

Further information on forthcoming Santander Universities opportunities will be available on MyAbertay
